

HE KILLED HIS BEST MAN.

A ROMANCE BACK OF THE MURDER
IN VARICK STREET.

There is a romance back of the tragedy that was enacted in the home of Mrs. Mary Phillips, on Wednesday night, Michael Costello, to avenge the honor of Costello's wife, killed James Purcell.

Costello, after the murder, was taken into custody by Capt. Adam Cross and locked up in the second station. Yesterday Costello was arraigned before Magistrate Thomas at the Court House and remanded to the street jail until after the inquest.

Costello was locked up in the Tombs. Two of the witnesses to the murder, Costello's wife and Robert W. Murdoch of 114 King street, were sent to the house of Detention. Mrs. Phillips, the mother of Mrs. Costello, another witness, was allowed to go on her own recognizance.

The case had been disposed of in court the details of the murder and the story behind it. One day a year ago a number of young girls were frolicking through the St. John's Park. One of the girls, Mary Phillips, who had just passed her seventeenth birthday, was one of three children who lived with her mother, Mrs. Mary Phillips, at 101 Hudson street. Mamie's father is a sailor, and most of the time he is on the ocean.

While Mamie was in the park with her companions, two young men entered in. One of them was James Purcell, a friend of all the girls in the party, and believed by many to have a decided partiality for Mamie Phillips. The other was Michael Costello, a brakeman in the employ of the New York Central Railroad, whose work at that time kept him in the city. Costello had just come from the park, and he introduced his friend to the girls, and they became acquainted.

Every evening for a long time after that Mamie and Costello met in the park. Purcell met the evening in the park. Costello asked Mamie to marry him. She consented, and Sept. 1 was set for the wedding day, and although both Costello and his sweetheart were Catholics, they were married in the Broome Street Tabernacle. A few days before the wedding Costello went to the city and stayed at the house of his mother.

Costello and I are going to be married on the 14th. You're my best friend, and I want you to stand up with me. Mamie would like it, too. You are an old sweetheart of hers, and you introduced us. You remember that introduction that let him see his sweetheart, but he made no complaint. He said he was glad to be best man at the wedding.

Costello took his bride to the home he had just left for in the city. They lived there for five months, and then moved to 337 Tenth avenue. They lived there for a few months, and then Costello was laid off, for no fault of his, and could not find steady employment. The little that he could get by for a while, but he was unable to pay the rent. Mrs. Costello, who was a widow, had a small room, and Costello took a room at 101 Hudson street, and Costello took a room at 101 Hudson street.

When Mrs. Costello went back into the Fifth Avenue house, she found that the room had been taken by another man. She came to see Purcell, Costello nearly every day. On Wednesday Mrs. Phillips was moving from the second to the third floor, and Costello was with her. When that was over he spent the evening with Purcell. Costello was with Purcell, and Purcell was with Costello. Costello was with Purcell, and Purcell was with Costello. Costello was with Purcell, and Purcell was with Costello.

Slates, Bricks, and Stained Glass Torn from the Pilgrim Church in Harlem.

Lightning struck the spire of the Pilgrim Congregational Church on the northeast corner of Madison avenue on Wednesday night and landed in the steeple, causing a fire in the neighborhood. The Rev. Samuel H. Virgin is pastor of the church.

The church is of red brick, trimmed with terra cotta, and has a tower rising 120 feet above the sidewalk. The spire is square for some distance above the roof, and this part is covered with terra cotta. The tower is of stained glass. The glass is set in geometrical designs. Above this part is a section containing smaller windows and relieved with heavy bases and cornices of brick. The tower is finished with an octagonal spire, slate covered and topped with a gilt ball.

At 11:40 P. M. two lightning bolts struck the spire just below the gilt ball. It tore the slate of two of the eight faces of the spire and caused the spire to fall. The lightning followed down the angle of the spire and fell in 12:15 P. M. The lightning struck the spire and caused the spire to fall. CHINESE BOARD ROUTED.

CAN'T SAY LAWYER BAKER ON THEIR PROSECUTION RED.

Competitive Examination Executed of a Man Who Took the Chinese Board to the Court House and the Chinese Board to the Court House.

Seward Baker, a lawyer, who lives in West Chester and has his office at 50 Liberty street, called the attention of the Dock Board recently of a violation of the laws of the city by the Chinese Board. The rights belonged to private individuals. The rights belonged to private individuals. The rights belonged to private individuals.

The Dock Board referred the matter to the Corporation Counsel, and he recommended that a place called "Seward Baker Water Grants in the Annexed Districts" be created and that Mr. Baker be appointed to fill the place. In order that an exhaustive examination of the subject could be made preparatory to the inevitable litigation. He advised the Dock Board to refer the matter to the Corporation Counsel.

Major Strong's Chinese reformers consented to make a special classification, but Chairman E. P. Wheeler refused to make the examination non-competitive. Major Strong, who is a lawyer of standing, refused to submit to a competitive examination, and he wrote a letter to the President of the Dock Board, saying:

It is supposed for one moment that competent and capable men will enter competitive examinations for the purpose of securing a place in the Chinese Board. I am sorry to say that this is not the case. I am sorry to say that this is not the case. I am sorry to say that this is not the case.

This letter was referred to Corporation Counsel Scott, who very quickly found a way by which the Chinese Board could be routed. He wrote to President O'Brien:

The Board of Civil Service Examiners must appoint an office of examination of Water Grants subject to a competitive examination, and being by all odds the best qualified person known, and a lawyer of standing and position, and a man of high character and high reputation, in which I think he is entirely right. I am sorry to say that this is not the case. I am sorry to say that this is not the case.

At 11:40 P. M. two lightning bolts struck the spire just below the gilt ball. It tore the slate of two of the eight faces of the spire and caused the spire to fall. The lightning followed down the angle of the spire and fell in 12:15 P. M.
